

Authorship

DeSForM considers individuals who meet all of the following criteria to be authors:

- Made a significant intellectual contribution to the work contained in the article
- Contributed to drafting, reviewing, or revising the article for intellectual content
- Approved the final version of the article as accepted for publication
- Anyone who contributed but does not fulfill all of these roles can be included in the article's Acknowledgment section.

Copyright and licensing information

All published proceedings are licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivs 4.0 Unported License.

DesForM operates under a Creative Commons License that allows for the reproduction of articles, free of charge, for non-commercial use only and with the appropriate citation information. The following uses are always permitted to the author(s) and do not require further permission, provided the author does not alter the format or content of the articles, including the copyright notification:

1. Posting of the proceeding on the author(s) personal website, provided that the website is non-commercial; and
2. Posting of the proceeding on the internet as part of a non-commercial open access institutional repository or other non-commercial open access publication site affiliated with the author(s)'s place of employment.

A complete version of the work and all supplemental materials, including a copy of the permission as stated above, in a suitable standard electronic format is deposited immediately upon initial publication in at least one online repository to enable open access, unrestricted distribution, interoperability, and long-term archiving.

Access and fees

DesForM publishes open access conference proceedings. All proceedings are accessible without cost to scholars and universities worldwide. No library fees. No author fees. No download limits. Free to publish, free to access, free to read for all forever. There are no fees to individual authors, and authors are allowed to self-archive their work.
